Musical Instrument

A musical instrument is a tool or device used to generate, modify, or reproduce sound for the purpose of musical performance, composition, or study. Instruments come in various shapes and sizes, allowing control over aspects such as pitch, timbre, volume, and various sonic characteristics. These acoustic properties vary based on the type and design of the instrument. Musical instruments constitute a significant part of musical expression, and in contemporary music, traditional acoustic instruments are used alongside electronic and digital ones.
